MEERA Mehta, a 21-year-old volunteer with non-profit Shrimad Rajchandra Love and Care, has been felicitated with The Diana Award for her humanitarian activities. Established in memory of Princess Diana of Wales, the award recognises the efforts of youngsters between nine and 25 years for their social action or humanitarian work and is supported by both her sons. Over the past 10 years, Mehta has raised ₹1.5 crore for initiatives of the NGO, including tertiary healthcare for a rural charity hospital, a science college for the tribal students, and primary and secondary education for indigenous communities. During the lockdown, Mehta raised over ₹33 lakh to support vulnerable communities. "This award is an opportunity through which I can connect to more people."
